The Royal Veterinary College reserves the right to withdraw any offer or cancel enrolment if information is found subsequently to be incorrect.

Data Protection

Royal Veterinary College maintains records relating to its students in both manual and computerised forms. These include correspondence with and relating to students, both current and potential; computerised records for applicants created from information supplied by applicants and/or UCAS and other agencies; and information on current students collected at initial registration or added as a result of subsequent processing.

The information collected and held is necessary for the administration of Royal Veterinary College's courses and examinations and the quality assurance processes that support them, and permits the University to make statistical returns required by the Government, the Higher Education Funding Council for England, and other statutory agencies. In completing the declaration at enrolment, students are deemed to consent to the collection, recording and use of this information in the ways described above and set out in more detail within the University's Data Protection Act registration.
